Miss Adams will impersonate 'Babble' in "The Little Minister.' No characterization by any actress in the past tew years has caused so much favorable comment as Miss Adams's portrayal of Lady ment as Miss Adams's portrayal of Lady Babble. The play has been seen here before, Adelaide Thurston first playing the part in Richmond at the Academy, and Percy Haswell appearing in it after-ward at the Bijou. The play, there-fore, is quite familiar to Richmond theaire-goers, but the significant fact is that the originator of the role is to play appearance in the South. She has never before crossed the Mason and Dixon line before crossed the Mason and Dixon line-certainly not as a full-fledged actress. Miss Adams went on the stage as a child, and it may be that some time in her life she has played in the South, but the claim is made that her forthcoming tour is her first one through the South.

and R. G. Craerin at the Acadamy Monday night, the production will be practically identical with that which caused so much attention at the London Lyric Theatre, and subsequently was so universally admired in William Greet's tours of America with this play. It will, however, be bright with brilliant new effects. The production will be every whit as magnificent and complete as when the play was first seen in this

New York, Messrs, Berger and Craerin determined to maintain the same standard of splendor in the stage mounting of this mussively pictorial drama, and purchased from Mr. Greet all the scenery and effects of the London production.
These have been finely repainted for this presented by Messrs, Fred G. Berger purchased from Mr. Orect an the scenory and effects of the London production.
These have been finely repainted for this season by that noted artist, Matt Morgan. From the pattern of the original costume plates of "The Sign of the Cross." noted for their rich color effects and historical and archaeological correctness, new costumes of equal splendor have been made for this scason's production. In selecting the admirable company, including many of the famed actors of Mr. Greet's London Company, as well as in the costly mounting of the play, Messrs. Berger and Craerin have been guided by the desire to have their presentation of this powerful drama as thoroughly complete and magnificent as

"Dolly Varden."

The story of Stange and Edwards's most successful comic opera, Dolly Varden, which has been produced here before under the direction of Mr. F. C. Whit-under the direction of Mr. F. C. Whit-ney, very briefly told is as follows: "Dolly Yarden, a very winsome and very demure country girl, has been left a fortune by her father, and is the ward of Jack Pairfax, an old-time friend. Fair-Jax, who is a wealthy country gentleman, and a bachelor, resolves to make Dolly his wife.

Dolly does not entirely acculture, so Dolly does not entirely acquiesce, so he selfishly keeps her from meeting mar-riageable young men. Although Miss Dolly is sweet and demure, she deter-mines to see more of the world than is droumscribed by the limits of Hampshire.

ding of Letitia Fairfax, Jack's maiden butterfly world, is announced. After a great deal of hesitancy. Fairfax announces to Dolly that they will go up to London to the wedding. In London, Dolly's rare comeliness creates a sensation. Dick Belleville, falls in love with Dolly, at first sight, and the admiration needs. villo seeks an introdection which is de-nied him, so, with the help of Lettia, a secret interview in the park with Dolly is planned. Disguised as a midshipman of the navy she escapes her guardian. Fuirfax learns of the clandestine meeting, and as soon as Dolly returns he com-pels her to write a note to Belleville, informing him she will not see him again.

While Fairfax is out of the room temporarily, Dolly writes another letter to Dick, in which she reassures him of her love, and tells of the circumstances under which the letter is written. Fairfax

Then by plot and counter-plot, disguised and subterfuge, at which Fairfax is outwitted at every turn, Dick and Dolly have it their own way.

The comic opera will be presented at the Academy Tuesday matince and night. Harry Beresford.

Harry Beresford.

Every indication points to the fact that "that odd fellow." Mr. Harry Beresford, in his delightful comedy, "Our New Man." will give an engagement of more than usual plensure and that the presentation will be one of the notable events of this season's successes.

"Our New Man" has transported thousands of people into a state of brightness and mirth by its brilliant comedy lines. In fact, it may truthfully be said that no comedy on the stage of to-day has taxed the risibilities of more people than this continuous laugh-producer. Mr. Beresford, who plays the title role, has scored a distinct and decided hit, being one of the few comedians who has been able to sink his own individuality and person-

A Message From Mars.

A Message From Mars.

Among the most important engagements of the early dramatic season, will be that of the distinguished English comedian, Charles Hawtrey in his world-famous comedy-drama. "A Message From Mars." Mr. Hawtrey played this piece for fivo hundred consecutive performances in London, and when it was brought to New York it ran for an entire season at the Garrick Theatre, this being the only time that, a forigon star has been able to attract with a single play for nearly seven months. The play which has some elements of the mystic and supernatural was inspired by Dicken's "Christmas Carol," and teaches unobtrusively the same lesson of unselfishness and charity. It has been a success in every English-speaking country.

WILMINGTON, N. C., O unour i.—After the performance of Jour Robinson's shows here this week, one of the elephants escaped from the herd, and it was an hour or more before he was discovered in a nearby stretch of woods. The brief term of freedom was clough to make the animal resist a return to captivity and his temper went up to a high pitch. Ten shownen bound inc clophant with chains and tied him to a tree. They had to whip him most cruelly hefore he could be gotten into subjection. During the whipping the other clephants stampede and they joined in a fearful in herd, numbering about ten, tiled to chorus of snorting and roaring, making the night hideous. They could be heard a mile or more. The elephant which was so badly beaten would stand up on his head while the punishment was being inflicted.
